Five Domains of Development

School Readiness

The goal for CBC Preschool is to prepare students for kindergarten entrance. As early educators, we realize that the development of the whole child is what is necessary for children to reach school readiness. School readiness is more than knowing the alphabet and counting to 20. Here is a brief overview of the five domains of development that your child's teacher will be addressing on a daily basis.

- Physical Health and well-being- Teachers will promote physical readiness for the school day, physical independence, and fine and gross motor development.
- Emotional Maturity- Teachers will guide children towards prosocial behavior, understanding emotions, and spiritual development.
- Social Competence- Teachers will help instill responsibility, respect, positive approaches to learning, and curiosity to explore new concepts.
- Communication and General Knowledge- Teachers will plan monthly themes to help children develop language usage, communication skills, and articulation.
- Language Arts and Cognitive Development- Teachers- will organize learning centers in science, math, literacy, dramatic play, creative art, music, blocks, manipulatives, and story time.

“Play is the highest form of research” Albert Einstein

Every aspect of your child's day will be a learning moment, but to them it will all just be fun and games!

THINGS YOU CAN DO TO HELP YOUR CHILD WITH SCHOOL READINESS.

Independence

Helping your child become independent is a step towards school readiness. When you bring your child to school let them walk into the classroom carrying their own lunch boxes and water bottles. Let them put their belongings away in their cubby boxes. They are really proud of themselves when they can accomplish this on their own.
